(4) Where a person who is not the creator of a design or the successor in title to the right to obtain design registration files an application for design registration, the application is deemed never to have been filed, for the purposes of paragraphs (1) and (2) of this Article.

Industrial Design Protection Act

(5) In the case referred to in paragraph (2) of this Article, the Commissioner of the Korean Intellectual Property Office shall instruct the applicants to give notice of the results of the consultation within a designated period. Industrial Design Protection Act

(4) An applicant for design registration may convert an application for unexamined design registration to an application for examined design registration; the applicant may also convert an application for examined design registration to an application for unexamined design registration.

(5) Where an applicant for design registration has not been notified of either the decision to grant design registration under Article 28 of this Act or the decision to refuse design registration under Article 26 of this Act (referred to as "a decision to grant or refuse design registration"), the applicant may amend the application under paragraphs (1) to (4) of this Article. However, if the applicant requests a trial against the decision to refuse design registration, the applicant may amend the application within thirty days of the date of requesting the trial.

(6) Where an applicant for design registration amends an application under paragraphs (1) to (4) of this Article after the design has been registered, and where the amendment is considered to change the gist of the initial application for design registration, the filing date of the application for design registration is deemed to be the submission date of the amendment.

Article 18^{bis} Rejection of Amendment

(1) Where an amendment under Article 18 of this Act changes the gist of an application for design registration, the examiner shall reject the amendment by decision.

(2) Where a decision under paragraph (1) of this Article has been made, the examiner may not decide to grant or refuse design registration for the concerned application until more than thirty days after the date on which a certified copy of the decision was transmitted

(3) Where an applicant has requested a trial under Article 67^{bis} of this Act against a decision to reject an amendment under paragraph (1) of this Article, the examiner shall suspend examination of the application for design registration until the trial decision has become final.

(4) The decision to reject an amendment under paragraph (1) of this Article must be in writing and the reasons for the decision must be stated.

Article 23 Priority Claim under a Treaty

(1) Where a national of a member country of a treaty that recognizes the right of priority for an application filed by a national of the Republic of Korea claims a right of priority for an application for design registration in the Republic of Korea based on an earlier application for the same design filed in the national's country or in one of the treaty countries, the filing date of the earlier application in the foreign country is deemed to be the filing date in the Republic of Korea under Articles 5 and 16 of this Act. Where a national of the Republic of Korea has applied for design registration in a country that recognizes, under a treaty, the right of priority for an application for design registration filed by nationals of the Republic of Korea and claims the right of priority for the application for design registration in the Republic of Korea based on an earlier application for the same design in a treaty country, this provision also applies.

(2) A person claiming a right of priority under paragraph (1) of this Article shall file an application for design registration within six months of the filing date of the earlier application that serves as the basis for claiming the right of priority.

(5) Where a person who has claimed a right of priority under paragraph (3) of this Article fails to submit the document prescribed in paragraph (4) of this Article within the required period, the claim to the right of priority loses its effect.

Article 23bis Laying Open an Application

(1) Applicants for an examined design registration may request the laying open of their application by ordinance of the Ministry of Commerce, Industry and Energy. However, a request for the laying open of an application for a multiple design registration is limited to cases in which the applicant makes the request for all the designs in the application.

(2) Where the laying open of an application is requested under paragraph (1), the Commissioner of the Korean Intellectual Property Office shall lay open the design application in the Design Gazette in accordance with Article 78. However, the Commissioner of the Korean Intellectual Property Office may not lay open the application under either of the following cases:

(3) When initial certified copies of a decision to grant or refuse design registration on an application for design registration have been transmitted, a person may not request the laying open of an application prescribed in paragraph (1) of this Article.

(4) Deleted.

Article 23ter Effect of Laying Open an Application

(1) After an application is laid open, the applicant may give a written warning indicating that an application for design registration has been filed to any person who has commercially or industrially worked the filed design or a design similar to the filed design.

(2) An applicant may demand a person who has been warned under paragraph (1) of this Article or who has worked a filed design or a design similar to a filed design knowing that the design has been laid open to pay compensation equivalent to the amount the applicant would normally receive for working the registered design or a design similar to the registered design from the date of warning or the date on which the person became aware that the design application had been filed to the date of registration of the filed design.

In such a case, "the time when the damaged party or his legal representative became aware of such damage and of the identity of the person causing it" in Article 766(1) of the Civil Act reads "the date of registration of the design right".

(6) Where an application for design registration is abandoned, invalidated or withdrawn after the laying open of the application, a decision to refuse design registration, a decision to revoke design registration under Article 29*septies*(3) of this Act or a trial decision to invalidate a design registration under Article 68 of this Act (unless Article 68(1)(iv) of this Act applies) has become final, the right under paragraph (2) of this Article is deemed to have never existed.
